

Abram Karmazin's Sister Roza

My sister Roza. My sister Rosa was born in Medvin in 1907. She finished Russian grammar school in Korsun. In 1929 she entered Kiev theatrical college keeping it a secret from our parents, so that we didn't tell our parents, because they didn't think it was a real profession at all to be an actress. She was very beautiful and talented. Rosa married Nikolay Sokolov, a Russian man. Later her husband became a Honored worker of arts and People's Artist of the Ukrainian SSR. He worked as producer at Kiev Russian Drama Theater. Rosa only acted in few plays. She loved her husband and spent all her time with him and soon she was off the stage and in no demand. After the war Rosa and her husband returned to Kiev. They received a two-room apartment. Nikolay continued working at the theater and staged many interesting performances. Rosa was helping her husband, but she didn't act any more. They lived an interesting life, met with talented actors and producers from Moscow. They always had guests at home. They didn't have any children. They died in 1970s.
