

Sultana Yulzari And Stela Dimitrova

This is a photo of me with my granddaughter Stela Dimitrova, nee Yulzari, as a school-leaver. The photo was taken in 1993 in Ruse.

Here my favorite granddaughter Stela is dressed as a school-leaver. The two of us are on the terrace at Stela's place in Ruse. She had just finished the local English High School.

Stela was born in 1976 and is the daughter of my son Sinto Mois Yulzari and his wife Sima Nisim Yulzari, nee Maier. As a matter of fact, Stela was named after her maternal grandmother, Stela Maier, nee Avramova, who lived with her husband, Nissim Maier, in the town of Shumen.

Stela completed her high-school education in Ruse and the university education in Varna. At the moment, she works with a tourist company there. Stela married Nikolay Dimitrov, a Bulgarian, who is from Yambol, in 2003. Now they live and work in Varna and they are expecting a baby.
